Portfolio Manager Q&A

Value Line Income and Growth Fund (VALIX)

Q1: Many moderate allocation funds are typically more static, investing 60% of the portfolio in equities and 40% in fixed income. How does the Value Line Income and Growth Fund differ from a portfolio composition perspective?

We believe the Fund has an advantage over traditional 60/40 balanced funds in that we aren't constrained by a static allocation to stocks and bonds. Instead, the Fund has the flexibility to adjust the equity and bond components of the portfolio based on the relative opportunity we see in the market and between the two asset classes. With this portfolio flexibility, we believe the Fund has the ability to be relatively opportunistic in stronger equity markets or become more defensive and capital-preservation-oriented in volatile equity markets.

Q2: What is the Fund's allocation mix as of September 30, 2014?

By prospectus, the Fund is mandated to hold at least a 50% equity allocation. In today's low interest rate and low inflation environment, we are seeing more relative opportunity in equities as compared to fixed income. The Fund's asset allocation reflects this sentiment and is comprised of approximately 73% in equities and convertible securities, and 27% in fixed income securities and cash as of September 30, 2014.

While the Fund emphasizes income, we believe that dividend-paying stocks offer both attractive income streams and capital appreciation potential. On a total return basis, dividends play an important role in equity investing as approximately 40% of the long-term return of the S&P 500 Index is derived from dividend income.

Q3: With an eye toward dividend paying stocks, what kind of companies do you include in the portfolio?

We focus on owning a diversified portfolio of market leading companies. The majority of the companies in the portfolio tend to be larger, well established businesses that are well positioned to increase their dividends and grow their earnings in the coming years. For example, as of September 30, 2014, the Fund held positions in leading large cap companies including Apple, Verizon and Starbucks.

In our selection process, we look for companies that have the ability to maintain as well as grow their dividend payouts over time. In addition, a smaller portion of the portfolio is allocated to companies that do not presently pay a dividend, but have the potential to return significant capital appreciation and pay dividends in the future.

With regard to the fixed income portion of the portfolio, we favor high-quality securities rather than compromise quality for incremental yield. The Fund's holdings generally include intermediate-term, investment grade corporate securities, U.S. Treasuries and Agency obligations.

The majority of the companies in the portfolio tend to be larger, well established businesses that are well positioned to increase their dividends and grow their earnings in the coming years.

Q4: With the Fund's ability to adjust its equity and fixed income allocations based on relative opportunity, how does the Fund's risk and return profile compare to other balanced funds?

The careful balance between risk and reward guides our portfolio selections. Historically, this focus has resulted in an attractive risk/return profile as compared to the Morningstar Moderate Allocation Funds Category. As of September 30, 2014, the Fund has rewarded investors with above average performance over the past 1, 3, 5 and 10 year periods relative to the Morningstar Category and, importantly, did so with Overall "Below Average" risk. In fact, only 5% of funds in the Morningstar Moderate Allocation Funds Category (out of 231 funds) hold this impressive statistic as of September 30, 2014.

The Morningstar Rating™ for funds methodology rates funds based on an enhanced Morningstar Risk-Adjusted Return measure, which also accounts for the effects of all sales charges, loads, or redemption fees. Funds are ranked by their Morningstar Risk-Adjusted Return scores and stars are assigned using the following scale: 5 stars for top 10%; 4 stars next 22.5%; 3 stars next 35%; 2 stars next 22.5%; 1 star for bottom 10%. Funds are rated for up to three periods: the trailing three-, five-, and 10-years. For a fund that does not change categories during the evaluation period, the overall rating is calculated using the following weights: At least 3 years, but less than 5 years uses 100% three-year rating. At least 5 years but less than 10 years uses 60% five-year rating/ 40% three-year rating. At least 10 years uses 50% ten-year rating / 30% five-year rating / 20% three-year rating. The Value Line Income and Growth Fund received 4 stars for the 3-year period, 3 stars for the 5-year period and 4 stars for the 10-year period among 737, 652 and 430 Moderate Allocation Funds respectively, ended 9/30/14.

There are risks associated with investing in small and mid cap stocks, which tend to be more volatile and less liquid than stocks of large companies, including the risk of price fluctuations.
